June 21-24, 2018

The changing of seasons should be reflected in one's practice of yoga, so that the exterior environment and the interior environment interact harmoniously and bring peace and balance to daily living. In this four-day workshop eclipsed by the solstice, Janet's skillful sequencing and use of props will help you reach new levels of awareness in your practice.

A background of study in the Iyengar Method of Yoga is necessary to enjoy this course. Students should know the full range of poses, including inversions, and be familiar with Iyengar Yoga's standard use of props.

Teachers

Janet MacLeod - Asana and Pranayama

Patricia Layton - Sutra Study

Yoga Sutra of Patanjali - book 2, verses 46-53.
Bring any copy of the Sutras if you own one.

Jul Chandralekha Forger - Chanting the above Sutras with Harmonium accompaniment in the AM sessions.

Kati Walker - Singing Bowls

Singing Bowls is an ancient healing modality from the Himalayan areas of Nepal and Tibet. Singing bowl meditation practice encourages deep breathing and returning the Body/Mind balance: Saturday 8-9:30 pm

Kathleen Wright - Erawan Thai Walking
Massage-Lazy Person's Yoga
Learn to give and receive some basic practices of this art. Lots of Fun! Friday 8-9:30 pm

Venue

Arsha Vidya Gurukulam is a unique facility dedicated to the traditional teaching of Vedanta and Sanskrit. The ashram is located on 68 wooded acres in the Pocono Mountains convenient to both New York City and Philadelphia. Facilities include a lecture hall connected to a traditional Hindu temple, a fully equipped yoga studio, residential housing, and a dining hall where vegetarian Indian meals are served.
